

Is A Used Roll Off Truck Just A Used Roll Off Truck?

When buying a used roll off truck, there's always the chance of finding a torn seat, severely worn tires, leaking fluids... After all it is just a used roll off truck, right? Not at Apex Equipment.

Anyone who has ever driven a roll off truck, parked it on a customers concrete ,or asphalt driveway, and have it leak oil, will understand this discourse. Anybody who has ever had a used broll off truck break down on the highway with engine trouble, brake problems, or even a blown tire, soon after the purchase, will certainly appreciate this article.

It appears, the practices of some used roll off truck dealers, to say the least, is to buy a truck as cheap as possible, clean it....maybe, and push it out the door onto unsuspecting buyers. It would seem, the used roll off truck industry is no different than any other industry in that respect. However, in every industry you have your exceptions, those that rise above the morass and repudiate the deliberate malicious enterprises of the corrupt. They are the ones, who while clinging to honor, and uprightness will not succumb to the degenerate ethos of the unscrupulous used roll off truck dealer.

This writer knows of one such used roll off truck dealer. A roll off truck company that deems integrity as the Apex of it's pursuit. The quest to root out the highest quality used roll off trucks, and bring them to an unsurpassed caliber for the used roll off truck industry. An assemblage of individuals, who in a common cause, seek to maintain dignity in the roll off truck industry.

Apex Equipment is that company. From the top of the chain down every used roll off truck that goes through the Apex facility gets a 210 point inspection, not once, not twice, not even three times, no, not even just four; but, an astounding five times. The owner personally inspects every used roll off truck before buying. Upon delivery of every used roll off truck another 210 point inspection is completed. At this juncture, a detailed list of requiremets is produced and delivered to the A-Team. This first rate team of experienced roll off truck recondition engineers, and technicians begin the refurbish process, while simultaneously inspecting the vehicle a third time. If something was missed by the first two inspections, the report is updated, and the process continues until all updates are made.

Now that the used roll off truck has been processed by the A-Team, it comes under the Apex Standard scrutiny for the fourth time. The owner will personally inspect the truck again, to make sure nothing is overlooked in the lengthy process. At this point the truck will be operated under driving conditions, and then under go a fifth inspection. If it passes, it is ready to roll. That's the Apex way.
